This place is a nursing home.

Here, elderly people live together.

My Mama works here.

I brought a gift of origami
flowers.

Red flowers for Datuk
and Popo.

Blue flowers for Akung
and Engkong.

Oh, who is that?

That Oma is new here.

I'll give her a yellow flower.

Oh, what's that in the jar?
Wow, they're origami
butterflies!

I want to look closer.
Can I hold it?

Oh no, Oma goes to her room instead. She takes the jar with her. I want to have butterflies like that.

Can Akung make origami
butterflies?

Ah, it looks like a paper roll.

Datuk can't make origami.
Engkong can only make a ship.

Popo is good at folding origami. But this isn't a butterfly. Should I ask Oma?

There's Oma!

A guest is visiting Oma.

He brought a stack of origami paper!
What will they make?

Oh, they call for me.

They show me all kinds of origami shapes.

I learn to fold butterflies.

Hooray! I can fold my own
butterflies.
Mine is still simple.

I want to make lots of origami.

I have to learn from Oma.

I'll be good at it!

The Litara Foundation was established in 2014. It aims to improve the literacy skills of Indonesian children. The founders and activists of Litara consist of teachers, writers, illustrators, editors, translators, academics, practitioners, and education consultants. Litara's work includes developing and publishing quality books, training and assisting teachers and communities for literacy activities in schools and Community Reading Gardens, creating literacy and numeracy modules for teachers, training writers and illustrators, donating books, conducting research on children's literacy, and building partnerships or strategic collaborations.

KIBA (Kelas Ilustrasi dan Desain Buku Anak) under the DKV Study Program of FSRD ITB is a course aimed at facilitating knowledge, research, workshops, and collaborations to improve the quality of illustrations in children's books, particularly in Indonesia.
